Equine Periodontics - Endodontics Wetlab

This course combines interactive lectures and wetlab-practicals using equine specimens, dedicated equine dental units and dental materials and is suitable for equine veterinarians, proficient in first opinion in equine dentistry, and with a desire to practice precision dentistry to a higher level. It will include the theoretical basis and practical management of periodontal disease, an introduction to endodontic theory, dental materials and techniques and their application.

- Review periodontal pathology and selection and practical application of appropriate treatments
- Develop and practice techniques for occlusal restoration of caries
- Understand diagnostic imaging and treatment options for pulpitis including endodontic techniques
